MISSOURI DEPARTMENT OF CONSERVATION

About This Area

Bunch Hollow Conservation Area is in Carroll County, approximately 10 miles north of Carrollton on Highway 65 then seven miles north on Carroll County Route Z.

Access to the area is three miles north of Coloma and two miles west on county road 130.

The Bunch Hollow Conservation Area began with an initial purchase of 1,409 acres in 1984. Additional acquisitions have increased the area's size to 3,294 acres, including about 1,285 acres of old fields and pastures, 1,300 acres of timber and 200 acres of crop fields.

Approximately 1,000 acres in the central portion of Bunch Hollow Conservation Area is a prairie/savanna/forest complex restoration project, in which prescribed burning is being used to encourage the development of a natural plant community. Many native warm season grasses and forbs, such as Indian grass, bluestem, rattlesnake master, compass plant, coneflower and blazing star, are responding to management efforts.

The area is managed to improve existing habitat for deer, turkey, quail and other resident wildlife species.

Things to Do

- Hunting. The area supports good populations of deer, turkey, quail, squirrel and rabbits.
- Fishing. Numerous ponds dot the area, although many are too shallow to support fish. Several ponds contain channel catfish, sunfish and largemouth bass.
- Camping.
- Hiking.
- Nature study and wildlife viewing.
- Outdoor photography.
- Frogging.

- Group activities, trail rides or outdoor classroom studies are permitted seasonally and are subject to a special use permit, which may be obtained from management personnel.
